‘Beneath it all, over the years, there had been enough love to sink a mine shaft’

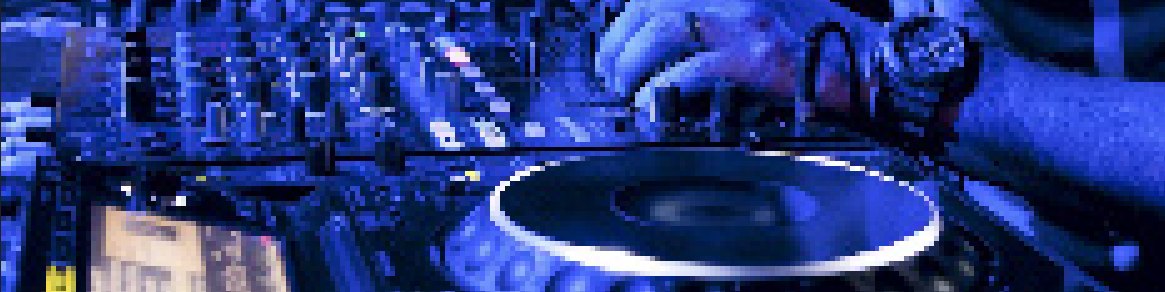

Following the success of their previous performance, ‘Elsie and Norm’s Macbeth’, Monkey on the Wall Productions is proud to bring you its next work, a comedy about life and love; John Godber’s most autobiographical play, ‘Happy Jack’.

‘Happy Jack’ is a funny and touching play about the lives of Jack & Liz. Set in a West Yorkshire mining village, the play is inspired by John Godber’s own grandparents and follows the couple’s 60 year marriage through good times and bad.

The play weaves through the story of this ordinary working class family and retells snippets of their lives together, the love, sadness, anger, joy and conflict. Balancing humour with some tougher realities, the play highlights the lives of working miners and the terrible legacies that many of them were left with long after leaving the pits.

So come and join us for what promises to be a funny, moving and heart-warming evening.

‘There’s a truthful timeless quality to this little piece of Yorkshire social history that isn’t showing its age at all’ British Theatre Guide

“Would you be brave enough to stand up to a director if your career depended upon it?”

Ever wondered what happens after the cameras stop rolling? Join Sophie at her first audition as she steps into the film industry and discovers for herself a rather more grim reality behind the Hollywood glamour. Will she ever be like her idol Judy Garland?

An escapade filled with song, dance and the real history behind the stars of the City of Angels. Featuring work from the #MeToo movement, join us as we discover the dark side of Hollywood.

The show has an audience 14+ age restriction due to the themes covered.
