Art Definition - eduqas

Art combines practical and intellectual activity and tends to focus on creative expression. Processes and outcomes are influenced by certain constraints or intentions, many of which are personally determined by the artist.

Processes can be structured or open-ended and might involve exploration of experiences, feelings, perceptions and observations that may include direct, critical and analytical study of artefacts, objects, places and people.

They may be initiated by the individual or in response to given stimuli, such as a theme, issue, or problem.

Outcomes can reflect the individual's imagination, influences and intentions in following an idea, conveying an experience or expressing feelings, often with the purpose of engaging others who will see the work.

Disciplines of Fine Art study include: • painting and drawing • mixed media, including collage and assemblage • performance and conceptual art • sculpture • land or environmental art • installation • printmaking: relief, intaglio, screen processes and lithography • film, television, animation, video, photography • digital media.

Craft Definition - eduqas

Craft combines practical and intellectual skills and focuses on creatively using them to sensitively manipulate materials, tools and processes. It involves applying knowledge and understanding of materials and their working characteristics, together with craft skills and creative intentions that take account of the needs of both the maker and the user of the final outcome.

Although learners need to have a working knowledge and appreciation of traditional materials, tools and processes, they should also be familiar with the use of new and emerging materials and technologies in contemporary craftwork.

It is essential that appropriate emphasis is placed on creative ideas and imaginative approaches, in the use of materials and craft skills.

Materials explored in Craft study include: • Textiles • mixed media • woodcraft including furniture making • Paper craft • ceramics and pottery • Jewellery • printmaking.

Design Definition - eduqas

Design places emphasis on the way practical and intellectual activity combine in order to respond to people's needs. Usually, these are not identified by the designer alone and this distinguishes design from most art and craft procedures that have largely been initiated by the individual artist or craftsman.

The designer tends to work within externally set parameters and takes account of such matters as the use that is to be made of the outcome, durability, ergonomics, aesthetic appearance, costs, and availability of materials and methods of production.

Processes and outcomes can range from being quirky, imaginative and risky to thoughtful adaptation and improvement of existing designs.

Disciplines of Design study include: • jewellery/body ornament design • performance design • interior design • product design • graphic design • packaging design • illustration • architectural design • Theatre and Prop Design • furniture design • 3-D digital design.
