4. Distinctive Features of the Programme and the Student Experience

The FdSc Health and Social Care degree is designed to be the springboard to a professional career in the health, social care or educational sector. It draws together theory and practice and is aimed at those who thrive working with people, want to work in the sector and wish to gain a relevant academic qualification. It is equally suited to those who want to keep their options open and those who may already have some idea of where their career aspirations lie.

Key principles of inclusion, development and partnership underpin the content of the course and our philosophy in working with students. The course will be particularly relevant for you if you are interested in widening your career opportunities as it is designed to provide you with the necessary knowledge, skills and workplace learning to enable you to work effectively within the sector.

The delivery of primary care services is changing. Health and care workers need to have up-to-date skills, knowledge and expertise and an awareness of the best available evidence to inform their practice and be able to work within an inter-agency culture. The FdSc in Health and Social Care will explore issues relating to teamwork and collaboration across agencies.

The programme will provide students with the critical skills and experience required for a variety of roles within the health and social care sector, including health education and promotion, housing, community work, residential care, drug and alcohol services. Students will benefit from our strong industry links that are already in place through our further education programmes in the area (Levels 1-3).

Additionally, students will be expected to undertake work-based learning within the sector, reflecting upon their existing and developing skills and qualities within their modules to fully enhance their personal learning journey.

The course incorporates a wide range of teaching methods including lectures, seminars, workshops, independent and group projects, e-learning and interactive activities. These methods are used to enable students to acquire and apply the knowledge, awareness and skills expressed in the course and module learning outcomes.

The course provides an academically rigorous and vocationally relevant student experience. Students engage in work-based experiential learning at level 4 and 5 enabling them to explore potential career aspirations and build experience in the workplace. These opportunities aim to 'embed' issues of theory, welfare provision and policy into day-to-day practice, and enable students to gain valuable experience in a work-based setting, extend their employability and gain access to potential employers.

Students will study a range of modules with the opportunity to develop areas of interest and specialism through a variety of assessments. Throughout the programme there is a combination of formative and summative assessments. Summative assessment is through a combination of 'standard' and extended essays, individual and group presentations, group reports, research project, reflective practice, table-top scenarios and examinations.

Lectures, supported by paper-based, audio-visual and web-based materials, are used to provide essential information, analysis of theories, concepts and methods, guidance for further work and a framework and stimulus for learning. Lectures also involve students in learning through the provision of opportunities for questioning, participation and interaction.

Seminars enable students to evaluate, integrate and apply knowledge, theories and concepts to historical and current policies and practice, discuss issues and arguments and share ideas and experience in an atmosphere of constructive dialogue and mutual respect.

Group activities, workshops, discussions and interactions facilitate the development of interpersonal skills and peer support and learning, and are used to stimulate discussion, application and sharing of information, ideas, values and experience.

A system of one-to-one tutorials operates to provide pastoral and academic support. Students will also have regular feedback and individual support for assignments and preparation for employment.

The qualification content is dynamic and responsive to trends in the health and social care sector, ensuring student knowledge and experiences are contemporary and relevant. The Programme endeavours to have smaller group sizes, allowing a personal approach to tuition.

An explanation of this map:

The work-based learning element of the programme will allow students to experience how health & social care organisations operate and will provide students with an opportunity to share this experience. The work-based learning plays an important role within the Foundation Degree award structure, complementing the programme and allows students to put theory and their practical competencies learnt in the classroom to good use in a work environment. Students will be required to complete a minimum of 200 hours' work-based learning (100 in year one and 100 in year two) and this will be monitored during weekly tutorial sessions. As evidence of work-based learning, students will be required to complete a 'Personal Development Plan (PDP) outlining SWOT and Action Plan showing a plan for personal progression during year 1 and a 'Reflective Journal' showing their achievements during their course.

Management & Organisation of WBL

A Work Based Learning Tutor will be established at Weymouth College who will have responsibility for managing and delivering this important part of the programme during the above modules, tutorials and workshop sessions. Pre WBL planning and preparation will be delivered by the WBL Tutor providing students with support and guidance to aid the security of their placement this will include industry exploration, personal and professional self-assessment, WBL aims & objectives (specific to each student) preparation of CV's, letters of application, application and interview techniques etc. The WBL Tutor will also monitor each placement and will be the principle College contact for liaison with industry.

In addition to the contact from the WBL tutor as part of the module delivery, students and the WBLtutor work alongside a designated Work Placement Officer who coordinates DBS and acts as a point of contact for the student, WBL tutor and setting supervisor(s) and completes formative observations and feedback to support reflective practice for assessment.

In line with standard College procedures (and in conjunction with University of Plymouth processes) the College will ensure appropriate Health and Safety procedures are put in place and monitored appropriately. The College has a Health and Safety Officer who in liaison with the WBLTutor and Work Placement Officer will carry out appropriate checks on each industry placement and will provide all appropriate information regarding roles and responsibilities to each student and each hosting industry.

As part of the induction process, each student will be made clear on the modes of assessment required for their work-based learning and will be provided with the skills and knowledge to prepare assignments which provide appropriate reflection and evaluation

Personal Development Planning

Personal Development Planning will take place during weekly tutorial sessions and learners will be required to continuously reflect on their work-related experiences as part of all round continuous professional development. Learners will consider the range of learning opportunities and forms of learning support.

As a critical part of the tutorial programme, students will learn to:

- Examine the processes and stages involved in professional induction and professional development within a variety of work-based learning contexts.
- Understand and reflect on individual strengths and weaknesses, and as a result construct an appropriate development plan for continuous evaluation and professional achievement.
- Identify and outline competencies in a number of professional skills that are appropriate to a specific employment sector.
